

Year 4 Blog - Week commencing 29th January 2024

Enormous Elephants!

In our writing lessons the children have been writing their final paragraphs of their fact files on elephants. Miss Elias, Miss Cartwright and Miss Roberts have been so impressed by the pupils writing. Each child has included super fronted adverbials, descriptive adjectives, facts and parenthesis in each paragraph. They have been a great read!

In History this week, the children learnt about different significant events from the past and future and how each of them have affected climate change. These events included the invention of the first commercial plane, as well as the horrific Gulf of Mexico oil spill in 2010. The children then plotted these events onto a timeline.

In Maths, Year 4 have continued their measurement unit and have been investigating perimeter. The children have become experts and can even calculate the length of a missing side!

On Tuesday the children enjoyed the 'My future workshop'. They had the opportunity to listen to people from different careers such as an architect and a carpenter. The children asked them questions and were inspired by their responses.
