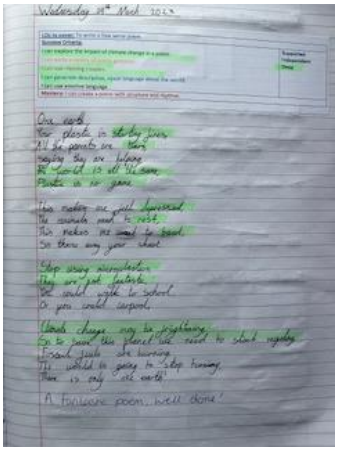
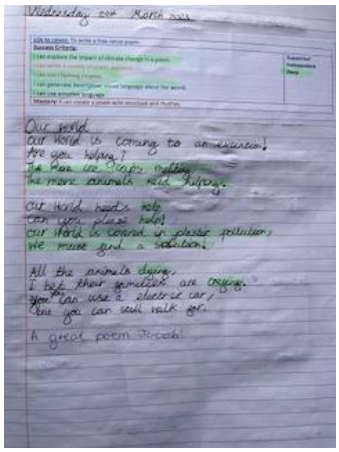
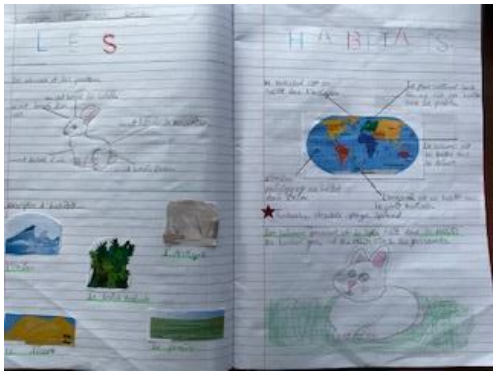
Year 4 Blog – Week Commencing 27.03.2023: Perfect Pollution Poetry

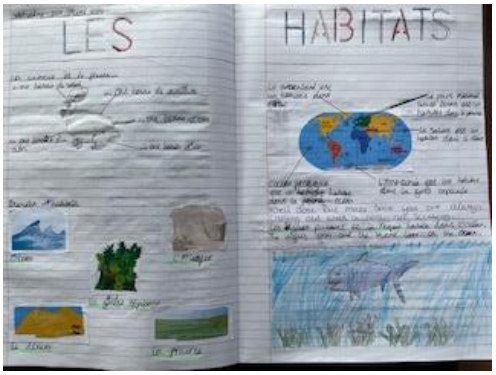
This week in year 4 we have been writing poetry! Our poems were based around the theme of climate change and pollution. We wrote free verse poems which means there are no set rules the poems have to follow. Some of us decided to make the poems rhyme! When we performed our poems, we thought about how to use of voices and some of us even added in actions and sound effects!

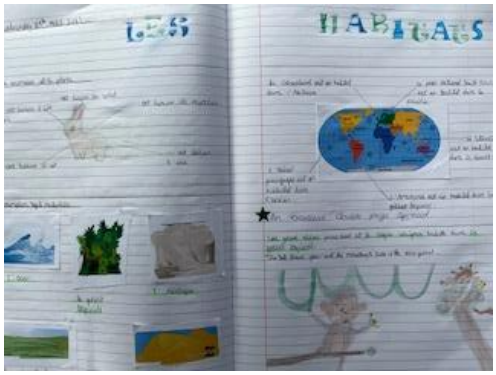




We spent some time this week putting together our French double page spreads on our learning of habitats. We had been learning how to say various habitats, what animals need to survive and various plants and animals that live in certain habitats. Then we showcased all of our learning into some fantastic double page spread.







We all got to complete a Roots to Food workshop this week, which we absolutely loved! We can't wait to make the recipe again at home!
