

Year 6 Blog week commencing 06.11.23

Emily Davison and The Suffragettes

Year 6 have had another very busy week and have been working tremendously hard throughout all subjects.

In writing, the children have been writing a balanced argument for and against whether Emily Davison intended to die at the Epsom Derby all those years ago. The children debated their viewpoints last week and have put this energy into their writing including all of our writing features such as modal verbs, adverbials, semicolons and the use of passive voice.

In History, we have completed presentations on the Industrial Revolution where the children have worked very well in their teams communicating via Google classroom and the chat features. We have also completed research on The Suffragettes and how they were treated, what they learnt and how they protested during these challenging times when trying to gain equality for women's rights

In Maths the children have been really challenging themselves on their fractions, adding and subtracting simple fractions and mixed numbers. They have followed the steps to success in order to do these and have produced a great quantity and quality of work.
