

Year 6 Blog – Week commencing 06.02.23: Raffle and Prizes for Progress!

We have had a brilliant end to this half term. Year 6 have enjoyed writing their narrative based on Kensuke's Kingdom. They have let their imaginations run wild whilst loosely basing their plot of the original novel by Michael Morpurgo.

In Maths, the children have finished their 2019 round of SATs papers. They have also been converting fractions into decimals using division. This was not as scary as they first thought!

In computing, the children were analysing websites, checking to see how reliable they are and beginning to design their own website.

In Geography, we started our natural disasters topic with the study of volcanoes and earthquakes. They examined the impact they have on the cities and people across the world, including Japan.

Our week ended in celebration when we Mr Tipper pulled out the raffle prizes for the progress they have made in the most recent SATs. For every score they have improved on since their last SATs round before Christmas, their name was written on raffles tickets and put into a hat. Well done to our 25 winners, including Molly in 6EKF who won a £20 one4all gift voucher. Everyone was a winner in our eyes as the year 6 teachers had to write out 1,968 raffle tickets this week and everyone had made improvements. WELL DONE! This will be repeated this in the last week before Easter.

We hope you have a lovely half term!
